A.N.A.M.'s "Foxhole Prayers" Hits Milestone of 2 Million Online Gamers

Gaming company plans promotion to celebrate the milestone number

Compton, CA – October 1, 2009 – A.N.A.M.'s "Foxhole Prayers" recently reached the milestone of 2 million online players. The company announced a new promotion to commemorate the achievement.

"Foxhole Prayers" is a free online game produced by A.N.A.M. The game, which was released in January of 2009, pits players from around the world against each other in online battlefields.

To celebrate its number of online gamers, A.N.A.M. has announced a new update to "Foxhole Prayers". The update will include a new ranking system and a new map. A.N.A.M., as an added bonus to its dedicated gamers, is accepting proposed names for the soon-to-be-released map.

"Gamer support is invaluable to our success," said Director of Game Design, Michael Caro. "To show our appreciation, we are giving the players the opportunity to effect the game they helped make so immensely popular. It's really our way of saying 'Thank You'". Name ideas can be submitted by anyone registered with the online game at www.fightforglory.com.

A.N.A.M. expects to release a beta version of the update by early November. "We were caught off guard by the success of 'Foxhole Prayers' and are now working very hard to get new content out to the players as soon as possible," said Director of Promotions,

Top designer XX Designs set to unveil new line in women's wear,
*Women's Prerogative

This "every-woman" designer series finds a fresh new balance between affordable and stylish.

Los Angeles, CA, USA – September 16, 2009 – XX Designs, the female designer company, plans to release its new clothing line Saturday, September 19th, 2009.

Named Women's Prerogative, the line expects to bring together business attire, casual wear, and affordability while also introducing a quick and easy "mix and match" transformation ability.

"Ranging in price from $50-$115," says Chief Designer Michael Marconi, "women can find pieces suitable for the workplace and the weekend outing. More importantly, women can find pieces for the workplace and the weekend which are comfortable, affordable, and trendy."

In addition to Women's Prerogative, XX Designs currently runs six different brands. With the opening of Women's Prerogative, XX Designs is also launching a new online program. At XXD.com, the company has created a mix and match program through which customers can search for specific items and create outfits by choosing from any of XX Designs affordable and fashionable brands.

"We are confident that this new 'mix and match' option will make our clothing more accessible and convenient to find," says Robert Barsanti, Vice President of Marketing. "Our goal is to bring accessibility together with low prices and fashion. In addition, each individual's style can be preserved as each customer can build her own outfits."

Get Ready To Decorate This Holiday Season With A Tasty Treat

LinkyDoodles™ beings preparations for production of its decorative garland, CandyChains™

Orange, CA – October 1, 2009 – LinkyDoodles is in full operation as the holidays approach. CandyChains, a decorative candy cane garland, will go on sale beginning in October.

What are CandyChains?

CandyChains are decorative garland made of pure candy cane. Made from 100% natural ingredients, each “chain” is made up of a number of links that hook together to create an eye pleasing and tongue teasing holiday ornament.

What Is Included?

Each package of CandyChains comes complete with over five feet of candy cane of various “C”, Heart, and Figure Eight shapes. Instructions on how to best connect the links as well as how to best preserve the cane are also included. Additionally, each package has a unique replication of a classic holiday card.

Ordering Information

LinkyDoodles doesn't being production of CandyChains until October. To ensure delivery before Christmas, LinkyDoodles only accepts orders until mid-November. Supply is limited, and orders will be treated on a first-come-first-serve basis. LinkyDoodles can ship its product anywhere in the continental U.S., and will even hand deliver orders made in Orange County, CA.

From The Foudner

“CandyChains are a way to bring back the good days of old,” said Elaine Berrymore, the creator of CandyChains. “I wanted a way to celebrate and remember the good ol’ days of snowmen, holiday specials on television, and families gathered around the Christmas tree.”

About LinkyDoodles

Located in Orange County, CA, LinkyDoodles was founded in 1953. With the creation of CandyChains in 2003, LinkyDoodles has expanded its business outside of its small Southern Califronia town and now ships its product nationwide. For more information, including shipping prices and fun holiday activities for the family, be sure to visit the LinkyDoodles Web site at: <http://www.linkydoodles.com/index.htm>

Pitch

Dear David Anderson,

I wanted you to know that while the holidays may still seem far off, at LinkyDoodles the preparations are just beginning.

I feel your readers will be interested in LinkyDoodles product: CandyChains. Handmade from all natural ingredients, this decorative candy cane garland is the ideal way to bring back the “good ol’ days” from Christmas past. For the older generation looking to restore the holidays from the past to the newer families looking to establish holiday traditions of their own, CandyChains are just the answer.

Each link is coated in an edible glaze, making CandyChains not only a decorative product, but a tasty one as well!

I will follow up with you in the next few days, or feel free to contact me with any questions at 408-710-7961. You can also check out the company’s Web site at <http://www.linkydoodles.com>.

Sincerely,

Robert Barsanti
